Co-Ordinating knowledge management dynamics

Written by Vincent Friday, 22 January 2010 17:38

In the last article in the series on Dec 10, we began to look at the different types of knowledge management (KM) operating in most organisations. Now let's have a look at how these different types of KM can be managed and co-ordinated. There are three types of organisational KM (personal, community, corporate), each with its own rationale, business drivers, objectives, tools and techniques. Read full article
